

to the waiter who takes the order to the kitchen. Once the food is ready the waiter brings it to your table.

- APIs are important in modern software and data systems for
 - ① Speed and efficiency
 - ② Security.
 - ③ Interoperability.
 - ④ Scalability.

② An API Key → is a unique randomly generated alphanumeric string that serves as a digital credential to identify and authenticate an application or project making a request to an API. e.g. A digitag

- The purpose of API is to manage how applications interact with a service. e.g

- ① Access control.
- ② Tracking.
- ③ Security filtering.

- How to store and protect API - they must be handled with extreme care.

- What can happen when expose to the public

- ① financial loss - Attacker can run massive bill on you
- ② Data breaches - If unauthorized personnel can get hold of it may access sensitive customer information.